

Hello/Goodbye

This month we welcome the new director, Tracey Reed, and say farewell to Margie Stern.

Like all of you, I love libraries. I can hear the "Well, that's part of your job." ringing in your head. But there's so much to love about IVPL. It is the warm, open, beautiful, beating heart of Indian Valley. In the very brief time I've been here, I feel the joy it brings not only to those who come into the library but also to those who we talk to as we go about our days. Every person I've spoken to raves about how much pleasure it brings them to be whatever part of this place they are. Whether they're checking out the latest James Patterson book, watching their child dance in Baby Boogie Storytime, releasing their creativity in Adventures in Art, or guessing the name of Shredded Book, everyone knows how special this library is. And I'm thrilled to now be a part of it.

Thank you to Margie for everything she's brought and given to IVPL. I am both humbled and excited to be IVPL's new Director and see where we go from here.

Tracey

As I step down as the library director at Indian Valley Public Library, I can't help but look back at the amazing journey we've had together. It's been such a privilege to be your library director for the past 8 years. We've accomplished a lot and done many things that have made our community better in so many ways.

One of the best things about my job has been seeing how the library can change people's lives. Whether its kids getting excited about reading or adults learning and growing with our resources, the library has a huge impact. I'm proud of how we've expanded our library's programs and services to better meet the needs of our diverse community. We've developed innovative technology concepts and hosted enjoyable events and workshops to generate enthusiasm for reading. Our goal is to create an inclusive and welcoming environment for everyone.

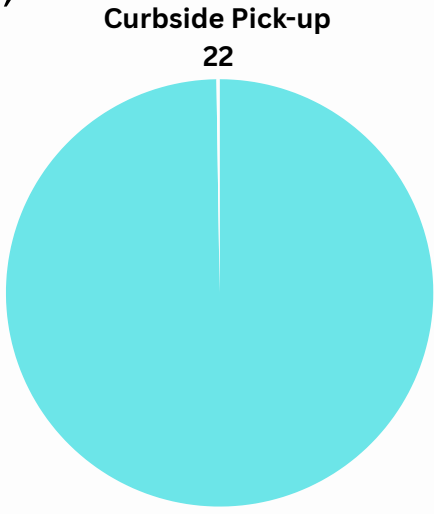

I couldn't have achieved any of this without the amazing support from our staff, trustees, volunteers, and the community. Your dedication to the library's mission has been the key to our success, and I'm really grateful for your hard work and support.

I just want to say thank you to all of you for giving me the chance to be your library director. It's been amazing being part of this community, and I can't wait to see Indian Valley Public Library grow even more in the future.

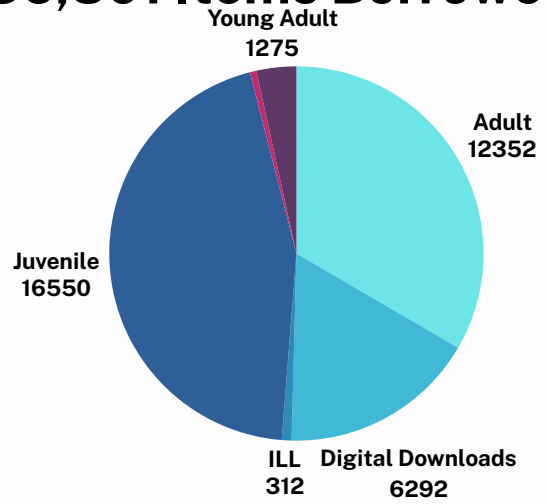

Margie
